

EDGY GEOMETRY

Last year, Lebanese jewellery designer Ralph Masri bagged $15,000 – a special award from the DDFC/Vogue Fashion Prize – and his collection landed at Harvey Nichols Dubai shortly. The prize money was “more of a cherry on top” and gave this young designer more room to expand his collections the way he wanted. And that’s just what he did.

Ralph revisited some of the key pieces from his sacred Windows, Arabesque Deco and Phoenician Script collections; this time, accenting the jewellery with emeralds. It was the one precious stone he hadn’t worked with before. As he started receiving a greater demand for emerald jewellery from clients, Ralph decided to play with the deep green gems alongside peridots and diamonds for contrast. Crafted primarily in white gold, he has also used rhodium-plating to highlight the richness of the darker gemstones.

Ralph’s bold and finely crafted geometric designs have many loyalists, including Queen Rania of Jordan. What’s not to love about the chic collection!
