GARDEN OF GRACE

Unlike most designers, Anna Hu doesn't create high jewellery collections every year. Instead, she believes in designing new pieces that draw upon her favourite themes, including a fantasy garden where gem-encrusted butterflies flit happily. Flowers bloom into exquisite shapes as seen in this Butterfly Rose necklace.

Briolette sapphires, briolette pastel sapphires, round brilliant-cut diamonds, purple and pink sapphires, and pink and yellow diamonds form the strand that holds the 117ct rubellite.

Pretty In Pink

For Geneva-based jeweller Boghossian, every creation is a visual feast, always taking a bold route working with gems and diamonds. Their art of inlay technique infuses the jewel with glamour and drama, as one stone is set inside another. This craftsmanship is reflected in a pair of statement earrings, with pear-shaped diamonds inlaid into rose quartz. Set in 18K rose gold, featuring small brilliant diamonds and two sets of pear-shaped diamonds nestling inside rose quartz, the earrings are pretty to the core.
